Art Unit: 1616

Applicant's election with traverse of a method of regulating body weight, a chemical compound binding to the 1,25-(OH)₂-D receptor, blocking an increase intracellular calcium concentration, reducing the risk of heart disease, reducing intracellular calcium concentration in the reply filed on 9/10/04 and clarification by telephone on 12/15/05 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that burden, including number of species, and distinctness have not been shown. This is not found persuasive because for an election of species distinctness need be shown. If applicants state on the record that the species are not distinct, the election of species will be withdrawn, however, an art rejection over one shall be applicable to all. As to the asserted small number of species, the assertion is mere opinion.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 21, 23-24, 35-41, 50, 53, 55-58, 61, 63 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shi et al (FASEB J., 12/2001, v. 15, p. 2751) in view of Norman et al (JBC 11/25/98, v. 508(27), p. 20022).

Shi et al teach that 1 alpha, 25-dihydroxyvitamin D₃ induces an increase in calcium ion concentration in adipocytes and a concomitant inhibition of lipolysis by binding to a putative vitamin D receptor on the cell membrane (title, principal findings 1. and 2. p. 2751).

Norman et al teach that 1 beta, 25-dihydroxyvitamin D3 is an antagonist of the 1 alpha compound, particularly calcium ion uptake (title, 2nd para. in abstract).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to use the 1 beta compound to control weight in view of the fact that Shi et al teach that the 1, alpha compound inhibits lipolysis and that the beta compound blocks the action of the alpha compound by binding to vitamin D receptors regulating calcium ion uptake. One of ordinary skill would recognize that blocking 1, alpha compound will promote lipolysis and, therefore, weight loss. As to the claimed reduction in risk of coronary artery disease, one of ordinary skill, in fact, even a layman, will recognize that weight loss will reduce the risk of said disease. As to the claimed liquid vehicle, an alcoholic would be an obvious expedient in view of the multiple hydroxyl groups carried by the compound.

No claims allowed.
